Dearest Hubby Love: —

Your Monday letter Love sure was wonderful, but, Love, your Tuesday letter sure did beat Monday's. Honey, dear, simply wait until we are together. Talk about being happy! I know, Love, that I certainly have been anything but happy since our separation — it seems ages since I was with you. Only one week from to-morrow, Love — I shall be with you. It is getting near now, isn't it Love?

My mother went to the hospital to visit your mother yesterday. After visiting you yesterday the dentist called me up, and when I went to his office, he took the bridge out, and also extracted a root. I rather not write about that root — I want to forget it. Real letter now. Am writing this early in the morning so that I know it is off, — and that you receive it on time. I will try to do that every morning first thing. Am up to 'in again the morning but expect it will be easily sailing now. I hope so, anyway.

Dear, I can hardly describe to you how badly Mom feels over my going away. When I came home & told her I had bought my ticket she realized that the time was coming to pass — and soon too. She tells me that she did not sleep all last night. You see, Love, it was where 2 daughters run home, and as Mom says, so far away. I do suppose Love that I shall miss them all terribly so you know I have more been away from home before. And now it will be such a long distance. But dear, I shall be very happy with you. And I know you are going to be very good to me. Aren't you lonely? I will try hard to keep from getting homesick for the folks, — but I do not know how I will make out. I do wish we could all be together — perhaps some day. I keep telling Mama that we will try to come home next Summer, & I do hope we can manage it.

Of course you will introduce me to Miss Wernatchy. When is she to be married? I suppose soon. Do you think they will be as happy as you & I? Yes; indeed we will always be where we are now — just as you say — besides being a loving & devoted husband & wife, we will always be good pals. Is there anything more wonderful, love, to be happily married and married only for love? I guess I love you precious only wife! Wait until these few days passes by. And then! — ———————————— What? Happiness for the rest of our days.

Don't worry about business being a little dull. You got to expect it. It will pick up — next week will probably make up for it. Am happy your tummy "is letting you to keep it so. This month "it" was pretty decent towards me. No more fear into our comfort are. It has passed over now. Let's do a thing yesterday as I felt bream out after coming from the dentist and then, too, the day was miserable, and Mama went away to your mother during the afternoon.

Shall close dear, with all my love, kisses. and soon, love, I shall be with you, my darling precious hubby.

Everlasting
Frances.
